ABOUT HOLMES COUNTY

Holmes County shares borders with Carroll County to the north, Attala County to the east, Yazoo County to the south, and Humphreys County to the west.

With an estimated population of around 16,000 residents, the county has seen shifts in population over the years but remains a place of strong local identity and opportunity.

Holmes County lies at the intersection of Interstate 55 and Highway 12, providing direct north-south access to Memphis and Jackson, and serving as an essential east-west corridor for regional traffic. This prime location makes Holmes County a valuable stopover for logistics, hospitality, fuel services, and retail businesses. With easy connectivity to major markets, the area is well-suited for developers seeking to capitalize on increasing traffic flow and the potential for commercial expansion.

Holmes County offers a supportive environment for commercial projects, with ample land availability, favorable zoning, and growing interest from investors and entrepreneurs. Its central location, proximity to larger developing areas like Canton and Grenada, and access to key transportation routes make it a promising option for those seeking long-term growth potential in central Mississippi.
